Brand best practices

Overview

The logo for Neutra tells a powerful story of harmony, balance, and progress, combining universal symbols of equality with the imagery of machinery to represent a unified, functional world:

Core Elements of the Logo

Equal Signs (=)

The equal sign, a universal symbol of fairness and balance, is the foundational element of the logo.

Multiple equal signs are arranged to form a functional gear, symbolizing the interconnectedness and cooperation required to maintain an equitable world.

Gear Structure

The gear represents progress, functionality, and the idea that equality is not static—it is an active, ongoing process.

Each tooth of the gear is composed of aligned equal signs, demonstrating that equality is the driving force behind the movement of society.

Circular Shape

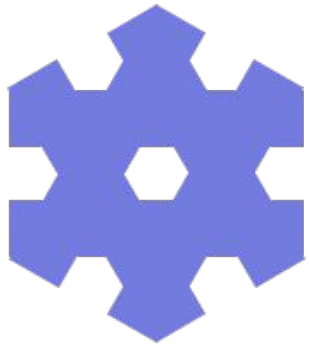

Usage and application

Logo

The logo symbolizes a transformative vision of a world where traditional concepts of gender have been transcended, and the only recognized identity is the human gender. This design embodies inclusivity, equality, and unity, representing a society that values individuality without the boundaries of gender roles or stereotypes.

Logo Variants

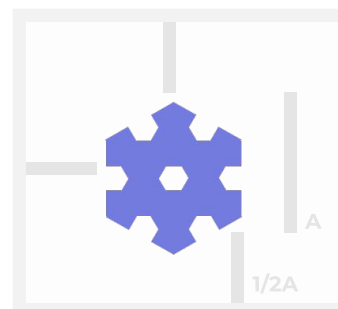

Safe space

The new logo is good but I “regard” it less as a strong visual choice than a recommender, because it looks more like a shoe that fits better this way. Conceptually, it’s a strong notion to implement but as a logo it’s a little flimsy and not quite ready for the task. The curved “l” gives it a little air of science-y but, yeah, it’s just a tad too “me too” for my taste.
